MARKET REVIEW

Equity Markets

Macro-economic and corporate fundamentals of India Inc continue to be strong. The Indian economy expanded by a whopping 9.4% (19 year high) for FY07 led by a consistent double-digit growth in manufacturing and services, although agriculture was a laggard. Industrial production grew at 13.6% (11-year high) in April largely led by manufacturing, which grew at 15.1%. India's foreign exchange reserves increased to $212.55bn as on June 22, 2007.

FDI in fiscal 2006-07 was highest ever in the Indian history - US$ 16 Billion. For the current fiscal 2007-08, the Ministry of Commerce estimates FDI to be to the tune of US $ 30 Billion. Hon'ble Finance Minister recently mentioned that if India has to keep pace with China then INR should be 'fully convertible' on Capital Account. If India wants to grow GDP in excess of 9% p.a., it needs approx. US$ 390 Billion investment in its Infrastructure Sector over the next 6-7 years.

The equity markets have shown strong performance and the rally shows no signs of abating as it continues to scale new heights. However, the current rally is liquidity driven in tune with the global trend and the markets may continue to rise only if inflows continue to be strong. Rising rupee, higher interest rates on the consumer loans may slow down the growth for a while and could surprise the market.

The monsoon has turned out well and that is also keeping the investor interest alive. The key driver for market performance is going to be quarterly earnings performance. Expectations for IT services and Consumers sectors have already moderated and investors are likely to focus more on management outlook. The trend in INR, vehicle sales and credit growth do point toward a relatively muted quarter for IT, Consumer Discretionary and Financials sectors.

While the long-term story continues to be good, caution is warranted in the short-term. The market is little ahead of fundamentals and is expected to either remain at current levels for some time so that fundamentals can catch up or it needs to correct a little bit to catch with fundamentals.

Debt Markets

The monetary tightening has started showing its impact on credit growth as it slowed down to 25.6% YOY (as on June 08, 2007) from 27.6% recorded at the end of FY 2007. India's wholesale price index rose 4.03% in the 12 months to June 16 as compared to the annual inflation rate was 5.50% during the corresponding week of the previous year. Inflation was a cause of concern for the Central Bank given fears of overheating in the Indian economy leading to monetary tightening with increase in repo rates, CRR hikes and MSS issuances. However, with a decline in both credit growth and inflation figures, these fears are expected to recede. It is believed that with these softening trends in place, the RBI is close to end of its monetary tightening cycle.

In the earlier part of the calendar year, the Central Bank faced the tough challenge to control three different economic variables– to keep inflation under control, to maintain an open economic environment and keep the currency under control. In February and March earlier this year, RBI controlled the currency from appreciating by buying dollars in the market taking its forex reserves past USD 200 billion mark. However, it led to injection of liquidity into the system forcing the Central bank to hike CRR twice in a period of 2-3 months. RBI has also issued bonds under the market stabilization scheme to suck up excess liquidity from the system.

With inflation fears subsiding, RBI has clearly shifted its priority to support the exchange rate as it continues to buy dollars in the foreign exchange market. This has led to huge influx of liquidity in the domestic markets. The call money rates, which touched 80% in the month of March, are trading below 50 bps for over the past month as the G-sec and Corporate Bond markets are enjoying a roller coaster ride.

Risk Management System

SEBI vide its circular dated September 30, 2002, has mandated the establishment of a full-fledged risk-management framework for mutual funds in India. In the opinion of the Trustees and to the best of their knowledge, the risk-management system in ICICI Prudential Mutual Fund is adequate.

c) Interest on debentures and other fixed income investments is recognised on accrual basis.

d) Income on non-performing assets (NPA) is recognised on cash basis.

e) Other income of miscellaneous nature is accounted for when there is certainty of collection.

4. Income Equalisation

This being an open-ended scheme, when units are purchased / sold by the Scheme, an appropriate part of the purchase / sale price is debited / credited to an Equalisation Account. The net balance on this account is credited or debited to the Revenue Account.

For the purpose of equalisation, the cumulative distributable surplus (without considering unrealised appreciation and Unit Premium Reserve) upto the date of purchase / sale of units is taken into account. In case of deficit, no income equalisation is carried out.

5. Sale / Repurchase of Units

When units are sold / repurchased, after considering the income equalisation as above, the difference between the sale price and the face value of the unit, is transferred to unit premium reserve.

6. Provisions

Provision is made by charge to the Revenue Account, in respect of:

a) Non Performing Debt Securities as per the Guidelines prescribed by SEBI.

b) Interest Outstanding for more than one quarter beyond the due date.

c) Securities where the certificates are not traceable for a protracted period.

d) Assets other than investments, which in the opinion of the Trustees have suffered substantial impairment in their value.

7. Initial Issue Expenses

Initial issue expenses borne by the Scheme are charged to revenue account in the first year.

8. Entry and Exit Load

Load charged at the time of purchase and sale of units is utilised towards meeting distribution and marketing expenses. Unutilised amount of Load collected is carried forward to subsequent year unless the same is considered excess by the trustee. Such excess amount is credited to other income.
